How to Play: BANANAGRAMS (with Zombies)

Place all 144 tiles face down in the center of the table. Since there are 8 zombies at the table, each player takes 11 tiles face-down in front of them. Once everyone's ready, any player can start the game by saying "SPLIT!" Everybody then turns their tiles face up and starts forming their own crossword collections of intersecting and connecting words. You can't use proper nouns, like names. Players can rearrange their own words as often as they want. There are no turns in Bananagrams, everyone works on their own crossword independently of each other.

When a player successfully uses all their letters in a crossword, the zombie says "PEEL!" and takes a tile from the bunch. When this happens, everybody has to take a tile and add it to their collection of letters. Play continues until there are fewer tiles in the bunch than there are players. At that point, the first player with no remaining letters shouts "BANANAS!" and is the winner! Note: If you are familiar with Bananagrams- the zombie house rule is that you can't "DUMP" any letters.

In this game, we see one zombie's board each time he gets to yell "Peel". Each time a letter was added as a result of a "Peel" called by the other zombies in between is shown as a banana peel.
