Cambridge loves its squares. That is, Cambridge really loves its squares. In some parts of town, not only is there a square named for some noted resident on every corner, but sometimes they'll manage to fit two squares into a single intersection. We predict they'll run out of intersections to name by 2025, unless a miracle occurs.

The map on page 2 shows the locations of many of the squares described above, marked with black squares. Only the numbered squares are used in this puzzle; all of them are readily visible from Cambridge St., Elm St., or Hampshire St.
