

SEASONED TRAVELER

NOTE: This puzzle must be solved before you leave Memorial Park!

You happen upon a hut-like structure; judging by the crests on the walls and mural on the floor, it was once occupied by traveling heroes. In fact, an abandoned journal gives the details of some of their most epic journeys.

1. We started from Boston and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city containing a single circular tower with a door and no windows.

2. We started from Anchorage and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city where a monkey clawed at the wall, trying in vain to reach a toy boat and goldfish cracker.

3. We started from Denver and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city where a single dagger hovered in midair.

4. We started from New Delhi and traveled westward. On the way, I noted a city where seven octopi all stretched in unison.

5. We started from Santiago and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city in which three flamingos stood on an island with many tiny docks.

6. We started from Rome and traveled westward. On the way, I noted a city where pipes are built into the backs of elephants.

7. We started from Seoul and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city where you can arrive with your wife on a boat and immediately be handed an umbrella.

8. We started from Seattle and traveled eastward. On the way, I noted a city where an hourglass runs out when the sun rises.

9. We started from Madrid and traveled westward. On the way, I noted a city where large birds are forced to fly lower than their smaller counterparts.
