

GLITCHED CONNECTION

DAVID BOWMAN
DRAFTED ONTO THE BACK BAY LEGENDS

David Bowman's space odyssey to Saturn back in 2001, on board the Discovery, was famously unsuccessful. Since then, he has continued to have a bad track record for reaching his destination. Several years later, after patching things up with his former nemesis, the A.I. HAL 9000, the two made plans for lunch. Yet "Dave" never showed up or even returned any of HAL's text messages. (This puzzle requires location-specific information.)

Arrived North Station! Checking out Portal Park nearby. The FULL SIGNATURE on that hockey sculpture makes me want to grill him for details. Writing this down!

Bowman? Where U @? Wandered diagonally towards Love and Joy. Found a WOMAN'S NAME on the map, which contains a second woman's name.

Circling back to write down the FIRST NAME of the poet quoted on the Tip Diamond. #suchafontofwisdom

Dave? Time is $. Found a street whose name describes how to MOVE along it.

Excessive delays. 100% typical. Pacing the road furthest from the Tip. Amusing myself by calling it the ROOT ROUTE.

Feel like I've been waiting 10[^]999 years. Checked the ROAD immediately behind the statue. The Little Piggy Who Went Here... was not named Dave.

Going back to the root route. Starting from the garden end, walking past another water route & the first right after that is OWNER MOUNT.

Hello, Dave. Would you like a HAPPY APPLE? I'm pacing along just such a road. It leads diagonally from the garden.

I'm sorry, Dave. I'm bored with waiting. That diamond poet's LAST TWO NAMES kind of sound like a show where mansion staffers review restaurants. (With that I shall sign off. Maybe next time...
