

GYM: "Take Your Pick"

Agents and married couple Byron and Triton Sepps were hoping to get a workout in today...but unfortunately, six noisy kids showed up and started demanding that they get to play different sports. To settle matters, By and Tri handed out a different-colored pinny to each child and began taking turns picking them for teams; Byron made the first selection. As they did, each child named the game they wanted to play the most. It'll be a weight off their minds if you can help get the ball rolling for them!

CHILDREN:

Brock, Cameron, Jamie, Laurie, Mitchell, Shirley

PINNIES:

Brick Red, Navy Blue, Sky Blue, Taupe, Violet, Yellow

SPORTS:

Basketball, Capture the Flag, Dodgeball, Frisbee, Kickball, Soccer

- Neither Brock nor Mitchell were picked last.
- The children picked second and third did not want to play basketball.
- The child wearing yellow was picked between the child who wants to play basketball and the one wearing brick red.
- Mitchell and Shirley are on the same team.
- Triton, angry that the boys were saying that girls could not play sports, made sure to pick Shirley first for his team.
- Brock loved the yellow pinny he was given so much that he didn't want to dirty it with a ball game. Contrariwise, the child picked fourth didn't care about the violet pinny they got, and wanted to play ball.
- Laurie and Jaime, who were picked in that order, were happy to be on opposite teams, because they don't agree on anything except that Frisbee is dumb, and so is capture the flag.
- Dodgeball is hard to play outdoors, despite the kids' protests--so they rebelled by picking it last.
- The children wearing colors with blue--including the one in violet--were all picked one after another.
- The child wearing navy blue was picked before the one wearing sky blue, but they weren't on the same team.
- No one on Byron's team wanted to play basketball or kickball.
- The child wearing brick red sunburns easily and wants to play one of the two indoor sports.
- Frisbee was the game of choice for the child picked first.
- One of the children wearing blue wants to play kickball.
- The blacktop is being repainted this week, so anyone who wants to play basketball has to do it inside.
